BODY OF FLIER MISSING 11 DAYS FOUND

BY A FIFTEEN YEAR OLD BOY IN HILLS OF PENNSYLVANIA

Airoplanist Lost His Life When His Plane Crushed Into a Mountain In a Fog On the Night of October 1st Near Bellefonte, Pa.—Second Government Aviator To Lose His Life in the Same Locality—The Finder of the Body Will Receive a Reward of $1,000.

Crushed amid the giant trees on the side of Nittany Mountain, the wreckage of a government mail plane Sunday disclosed the body of Charles H. Ames, the pilot, for whom thousands have been searching nine days.

It was evident that Ames, for six years a pilot, was flying low on the night of October 1, while enroute from New York to the west with a cargo of mail. Air mail officials expressed the belief that the birdman, confused by a dense fog, had piloted his ship into the mountainside, meeting instant death when the plane crashed into the forest.

Death Instantaneous. When found the death pilot was seated in the cockpit, his right arm raised to his face as if to ward off a blow. His legs were entwined about the control stick and his parachute was strapped to his back, with two flares, the aviator's signal of distress, lying by his side. The gas tank contained sufficient fuel to carry him some distance and all switches of the motor were on. This led the mail officials to believe that death was instantaneous.

Dr. W. A. Heaton of Phillipsburg, the coroner of Center county, after examining the body at an undertaking establishment at Bellefonte, Pennsylvania Sunday night, said that Ames' death was "due to a fracture of the frontal bone." There was a bad cut on the airman's forehead and bruises on his face. Other parts of the body were unmarked.

Intact in the rear section of the ship were the 13 pouches of mail with which Ames started on the fatal trip.

Superintendent Carl F. Egge of the air mail service, who directed the widespread search for Ames, reached the spot where the birdman met death shortly after the plane was found. He reported that the plane was a total wreck, both wings being destroyed when they crashed into the big trees. These trees, he said, closed in on the ship, covering it completely and making it impossible for searching airmen to locate the wreckage.

Paul Ames, Washington, brother of the dead pilot, reached Bellefonte Sunday night from Clarion, where he had participated in the search. He said no funeral arrangements would be made until he heard from his parents Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Ames, Hollywood, California.

In addition to his parents and the brother, Ames is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Carroll E. Blakemore, Corvallis, Oregon, and Mrs. Frank J. Taylors, Saratoga, California. The brother said that he believed the remains of the pilot would be taken to Jackson, Michigan, former home of the Ames' for burial.

Superintendent Egge announced that H. B. Shaver, eastern division air mail; Superintendent F. J. Celhaus, manager of the Bellefonte flying field, and J. D. Hiel, veteran mail pilot, named to investigate the crash, convened at Bellefonte Monday and later visited the scene of the accident to view the tangled remains of the ship.

Ames was on his course and was near the Heckla light, beacon for airmen, when he met his fate. Over the point, where his body rested in the debris, other airmen had passed each day flying east and west with their cargoes of mail for New York and Chicago.

For several days the search for Ames had centered on the Clarion region, west of Bellefonte, where thousands of volunteers, Pennsylvania national guardsmen and aviators combed a wide area in the belief that the pilot had fallen in the district. Little hope was held that he would be found east of Bellefonte. But there were those who believed that in the mountains around Nittany would be found the plane with its pilot dead.

The plane was found by John D. Earmitt, the 15 year old son of E. A. Earmitt, a farmer of Heckla, nearby. The lad was one of a party organized Sunday morning to search the mountain side.

The place where the body was found was on the true course to the Bellefonte field. The machine was lying head down the mountainside, and slightly tilted to the right, Ames' body was strapped in the seat leaning over the right side of the plane with the head resting on the right arm. The face was partly mashed and there was a deep wound in the head.

The tops of several nearby trees had been cut off and two other trees were snapped off near the bottom where the plane finally landed. The wings were torn off and the motor was split in two lengthwise. There was no evidence of fire.

It was the theory of those familiar with the air mail course in that territory that Ames probably mistook the Heckla gap light ahead of him as the Bellefonte field and started to descend to make his landing. As the weather was foggy the night he disappeared he evidently was flying low so as not to miss the field. In doing so, it is believed, he struck the tops of the trees and then fell.

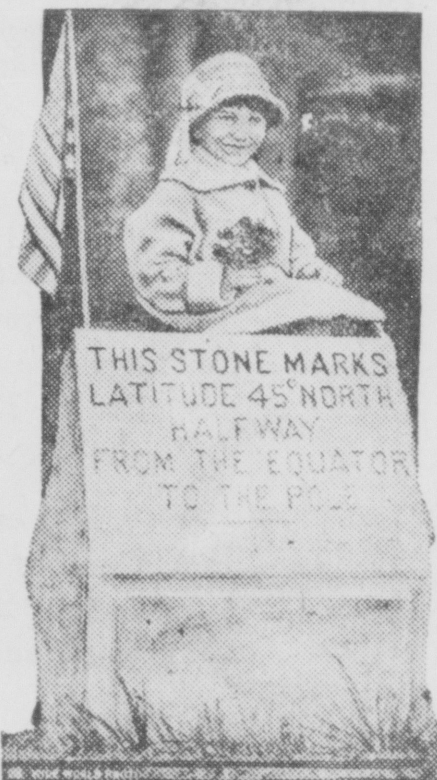

The fact that his motor was split in two and the thick trees were cut off near the bottom indicated that he struck the ground with terrific force.

Ames was 32 years old. He was a World war veteran and had been in the air mail service for several years. He was regarded as one of the most experienced pilots in the service.

A reward of $1000 had been offered for the find of Ames, alive or dead. Of this sum, $500 was offered by the Pilots' Association of America, $250 by the air mail pilots and $250 by Harry Humphries of Cleveland, a personal friend.

Ames' death is the second that has occurred among the air mail pilots in the mountain ranges of Pennsylvania. In March, 1924, Brooks Hyde Pearson was caught in a snowstorm near Curwensville, west of Bellefonte, and is believed to have dashed into a mountainside. He was found after several hours' search in his partly burned plane by a farmer in a ravine in the wooded part of his farm.

WASHINGTON IS CINCHING CHAMPIONSHIP

Walter Johnson Whitewashed the "Smoky City" Pirates—Score 4 to 0.

Walter Johnson's second world series ambition was realized Sunday when the speed king pitched Washington to a 4 to 0 whitewash of the Pittsburgh National league champions thus placing the American leaguers in the lead, three games to one.

Never before did a world series pitcher succeed in blanking the Pirates. The old king of modern mounds men that ever swept a baseball across the pitching distances, stood, and in his majestic presence the sluggers of the Pittsburg Pirates were again strangely dwarfed.

They were but tiny little men, running her and there, vainly, futilely, in the shadow of the giant, like the Lilliputians in Gulliver's Travels.

This series seems to be about over. The Washington club, of the American League, now has a lead of three games to one over the champions of the National league, and if the Senators win again Monday, the annual baseball struggle comes to a close. While Johnson was holding the Pirates in the hollow of his oily old glove Sunday afternoon "Goose" Goslin hit a home run into the leftfield bleachers with two runners on the bases.

"Moon-face" Joe Harrie, the heaviest hitter of the series so far, immediately followed him with another homer, which was interesting but not important as far the result was concerned.

ADELPHI FAIR ATTRACTED A LARGE CROWD

George Siberell, Most Perfect Baby and Parker Goldrick, Typical Boy.

Fifteen hundred persons turned out Saturday afternoon at Adelphi for the events of the third and last day of the annual Knights of Pythias community fair.

Four events sponsored by the Columbus Dispatch attracted the attention of fair patrons Saturday and were enthusiastically watched despite the chilly weather. A fancy work contest for women brought out more than a dozen entries, each of whom displayed her best materials in the needlework arts. The winner, Miss Elsie Redfern, of Adelphi, was rewarded with an imported Italian linen table set. Elsie Armstrong and Kathlyeen Armstrong were second and third in the honors, respectively.

Parker Goldrick, accompanied by his canine friend, called by the name of "Mutt," carried off first honors in the contest to select the most typical boy and his dog. Parker carried home a football and a new dog collar as his trophies. Paul Miller and his dog, "Bob," were second.

George Edwin Siberell, aged six months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reese Siberell, of Kingston, was adjudged the most perfect in the baby contest, which was supervised by physicians of the Ross county board of health. The boy had a score of 90 per cent. An engraved sterling silver mug is his reward.

Two knives, given for first and second places in the men's whittling contest, were carried home, respectively by R. M. Cryder of Adelphi and R. E. Rossiter, of Kingston.

DEMAND FREE RADIO RIGHTS OF COMPOSERS

Youngstown, O. Oct. 12, (UP).—The fight from now on will be between the radio listener and the composers' society instead of between the broadcasting stations and the society of Authors and Composers.

Announcement by radio station TAM, Cleveland, that it would close five studios because of demands of music publishers for high license fees has stirred the fans here to drastic action.

An early meeting of broadcast listeners is contemplated at which the fans will probably sign a pledge to boycott any composer or publisher who does not give free radio rights to his work.

DOWN IN ALABAMA.

Eli Haag, who falsely registered at the New American hotel, had a hearing before Mayor Fitzpatrick Saturday afternoon and was found guilty. He was handed a fine of $150 and costs, which he paid and departed for a warmer clime, Alabama.

Haag was accompanied here a girl thirteen years of age. He was to be followed by the girl's mother, Mrs. Merle Douglas, of Columbus, and the trio was going south. After the trouble he left this city alone. The woman called the police department Sunday for her "sweetie," but he had flown.

GRAND JURY.

The grand jury which recessed last week, convened this morning and took up their duties. Mrs. Jennie Groce was excused owing to illness and Charles H. Niles was called in her place.

NO INTERFERENCE

From Federal Court In Indian Tribal Customs.

Santa Fe, Oct. 9.—The Pueblo Indians have a right to regulate the costumes worn in their dances and matters of discipline within their pueblos, according to a decision handed down here by Federal Judge Colin Neblett. This is an important decision since it defines the authority of government agents as well as other persons in interfering with the self-government of the Indians within their own pueblos.

The case that called forth this decision was that of two young Indians who had been away at a government school and refused to change their American clothes when taking part in one of the tribal ceremonies. The Indian Council reprimanded them for this and fined them $1 each. For the second offense they were fined $2 each, and chose to take the "ceremonial slap" instead. One of the boys, Joe Sandoval, was beaten upon his blanketed back in the presence of the council, while the other boy, Tony Mirabal, was given one stroke with a birle.

According to the argument in the case this was never a brutal or violent punishment, but a tradition, a symbol of respect to tribal customs. Even old men received it if the Council of the Elders deemed they merited it. Also the boys were given the choice of not appearing in the ceremony, or of complying with its requirements if they wished to dance.

Following a complaint from the boys when this happened last spring, C. J. Crandall, Superintendent, took up the matter with the Indian Bureau and was instructed to turn the case over to the United States Attorney. The Governor of Taos, Guadalupe Lucero, and his nine councilmen were arrested and brought to Santa Fe to answer charges of assault and battery. The court held, however, that this did not come within one of the nine crimes specified by the United States court as those for which Indians are to be judged by American laws.

The question of ceremonial dress among the Indians is one which has great significance in the survival of pure Indian ceremonies and art. During the recent Santa Fe fiesta, the Indian dances were given 50 points in the prize contest between all the Pueblo for purity of original Indian costumes and were penalized for "store clothes." The old men of the Pueblos, many of whom are members of the councils, declare that it is only by adhering strictly to their old traditions that the deep religious and cultural life of the Indians can survive the American influence.

One of the interesting details of this trial was the memorandum sent by the Taos Council to Washington as to how the returned Indian students should alter their modern clothes in order to meet the Indian requirements.

LOANS up to $500

If you borrow a dish-pan from your neighbor, and have to pay it back by loaning him your car the price comes high. Yet some people expect the redemption of a favor in just about that proportion. An accommodation loan from a friend or relative usually costs plenty in one form or another and in addition to the cost, if the incident should become the subject of family or neighborhood discussion, it is embarrassing, to say the least. An element of personal accommodation enters into every City Loan transaction, but fundamentally it is a business proposition. The borrower knows the full cost before he starts, also that a credit once established can be used time and again as desired.

Teacher Says Oil, Prayers and Books Brought Wealth

Chicago.—A romance of the triple tincture of oil, education and religion was disclosed at the University of Chicago. A. G. Koenig, once a poor teacher, who struck oil in Texas, has resumed his study of chemistry at the University of Chicago.

He started his course in 1917, but lack of funds caused him to abandon it. In 1921, when he had saved enough to produce a small income, he made two pledges.

One, that he would give one-fifth of his earnings to the churches and humanity, and the other that he would continue in the teaching profession as the best field of human service.

He began teaching at Mexia, where he made an investment in land that has a gas well which under his analysis showed a gasoline content. A well was sunk, oil was found, and his yearly income increased in six months to $100,000. The same year he gave $20,000 to education and charity.

The American Legion(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)COMMANDER McIVER IS STRONG LEADER

Independence Day was not the only thing American Legionnaires of South Carolina celebrated on the Fourth of July, 1924; the second cause of jubilee was the election on that date of E. Rick McIver, of Florence, as 1925 commander of the South Carolina department of the Legion.

"There's nothing spectacular or theatrical about Rick McIver," declared a rural friend, "but its a mighty comfortable feeling to have him at the head of affairs; you can always bank on the cart getting there that Rick McIver is pulling, because he never rears nor kicks over the traces."

That astute observance of Commander McIver is about as true as anything can be. He is a man who has gone quietly and calmly about his duties, leaving bombast and blarney to others while he worked. Which doesn't imply that he has led a cloistered and protected life by any means. He's a fighter and a virile, two-fisted leader of men, at present engaged in the business of maintaining law and order as the chief of police of Florence, which office he has held since 1921.

Something of the energy of Rick McIver is revealed by the record of Clemson agricultural and mechanical college from which institution he graduated in 1915. In addition to scholastic honors, the athletic records show that as captain of the track team, he won in one meet the high jump, broad jump, 100-yard dash, the 140 and 220-yard hurdles. This is mentioned as an indication of what might be expected of such a man in the big track meet of 1917-1918 as a member of the A. F. team.

At the beginning of the Mexican border fireworks "Rick" went to the border as first sergeant of company E, Second South Carolina infantry. On November 20, 1916, he was commissioned a first lieutenant and assigned to the same unit. When called to the service in the World war he was made a captain. Captain McIver sailed for France in May, 1918, and served with the One Hundred and Fifth ammunition train until his discharge in 1919.

Aside from soldiering and policing, Commander McIver is a farmer.

Education Week Is Set for November 16 to 22

"American Education Week" will be observed throughout the nation the week of November 16 to 22, 1925. It has been announced at national headquarters of the American Legion at Indianapolis.

The National Education association and the United States bureau of education co-operate with the Legion in the perpetuation of Education week, which was first suggested by the Legion at the annual meeting of the National Education association in 1921. The week has since been observed annually by presidential proclamation.

The program for the week embraces Constitution day, Patriotism day, School and Teacher day, Conservation and Thrift day, Know Your School day, Community and Health day, and For God and Country day.

President Coolidge, in commending Education week, said: "It is not too much to say that the need of civilization is the need of teachers."

Requests Purchase of Historic Billop House

A proposal that the city of New York purchase historic "Old Billop House," at Tottenville, N. Y., which housed the first peace conference after the War of the Revolution, was included in a petition sent to Mayor Hylan recently by the American Legion post of Staten island. The house was erected in 1668. Benjamin Franklin and John Adams met Lord Howe, representing the British, there to decide peace terms. The Legion would convert the ten acres surrounding Billop house into a public park.

Interesting opposition to the acquisition of the property has been raised on the grounds that Christopher Billop, original owner, was a Tory actively, and brutally engaged in the War of the Revolution.

DEATH'S TOLL
IN THE STATE
LAST SUNDAYDisasters Due to Grade Crossings and Collisions of Automobiles.

At least four persons were killed and more than two score injured in traffic accidents thruout the state Sunday.

Two were killed at Canton, one at Toledo, one at Cincinnati, and accidents at Bellaire and other cities added to the rapidly mounting list of injured.

In nearly every instance the disasters were due to grade crossing crashes or collisions between machines.

Canton, O., — Carl Hall, 35 and Gene Snyder 36, were killed Sunday when a Pennsylvania train demolished their car at a grade crossing near here.

Toledo, — Mrs. Amelia Kuttner, 56, was killed Sunday when the machine she was riding in collided with one driven by Edwin Holley, 20.

Cincinnati, — Hamilton county's traffic accident toll mounted to 100 Sunday when Samuel Deck, 42, was killed when his automobile and another machine collided.

Shelby, — W. E. Myers, 40, and his 5 year old daughter were killed here Sunday when a train wrecked the Myers automobile at a grade crossing.

SOCIAL AFFAIRS

A profusion of beautiful dahlias were used to decorate the home of Mrs. Orion King last evening when she and Miss Helen Wittich entertained to a six o'clock dinner-bridge. The dahlias, which were grown by Mrs. King and Mrs. James Moffitt, were placed about the home in a very artistic manner and were the only decorations used. Sixty-four ladies found their places around 16 tables placed in the large living rooms where a delicious dinner was served. After the dinner several games of bridge were played which resulted in Mrs. N. T. Weldon receiving first and Miss Nell Weldon the second prize.

Mrs. Thomas Cooper, of Los Angeles, California; Mrs. Paul Cromley, Mrs. Anna Ball and Mrs. George Gardner, of Ashville, were the guests from out of town.

FIND RICH GOLD
DEPOSIT IN IDAHOJuncture of Three Rivers
Yields Great Wealth.

Pocatello, Idaho.—At a desolate point at the juncture of Clark, Butte and Jefferson counties in northeastern Idaho, where three rivers sink into the sands of the Snake river basin, a gold placer which is expected to be as rich as that of the Boise basin of early days has been discovered.

Announcement from Dubois confirmed the discovery, and with the movement just started claims are being rapidly staked out.

The three streams—Big Lost river, Little Lost river and Birch creek—have in ancient times and up until the advent of irrigation in the early eighties, virtually merged their waters and disappeared in the sands on the same square mile of desert.

For nearly fifty years these mysterious rivers have been the despair of geologists, engineers and gold seekers because they gave but niggardly indication of the gold values that geologists insisted must be present.

D. T. Murphy, a Dubois civil engineer, some time ago set out to locate the deposit. Concluding that the three torrential streams carried values, but moved too fast to deposit them, the search rapidly led to the slinks, where the theory was verified.

Besides gold and indications of platinum, gems of the corundum family of which emeralds and rubies are typical, have been found.

Volcanic Island

On the island of Java there are 117 volcanic mountains, of which 90 are active; the Hawaiian islands, where the greatest volcanoes rise, have relatively few; only four active and one extinct cone.—Science Service.

A VOCATIONAL BACK

A certain professor, who is a remarkably well-built man, was staying at a village not long ago. One day he happened to pass two men carting flour.

"Say, Bill, who's that?" he overheard one asking the other.

"That's the professor what's staying here," was Bill's reply. "They say as how he's very learned."

"What a spoilt man," rejoined the other. "I never in my life see'd such a back for a sack of flour."

Convinced

"Are you getting anything out of that course in salesmanship?"

"Not much. I'm afraid I'll never be one-tenth as good a salesman as the man who sold me the course."—American Legion Weekly.

A Daring Departure in 1921

.. today, the nation's standard for small home heating

"BEAUTIFUL, yes, but will it work?" Many questions, like this one, greeted the Heatrola in 1921. It was so different in appearance and operation from anything known before.

But Heatrola "worked!" From the day of the first installation, its success was assured. For Heatrola, handsome as a fine mahogany cabinet, and as easy to keep clean, does the work of a basement furnace! It keeps every room in the house, upstairs and down, cozy and snug in coldest weather. And requires no more fuel than any stove requires.

Tens of thousands of homes enjoyed Heatrola's furnace comfort last Winter—many thousands more will own Heatrolas before snow flies. Right here in this community, the homes of many of your neighbors are kept warm by this modern heating method. Let us show you these Heatrolas, and tell you how easily you can own one, too. SAVE THEM

Circleville, Ohio, R. F. D. 1, Aug. 26, 1924.
MR. F. L. FICKARDT:
All spring I have been having trouble with my flock, both young and old. During July I lost about 100. Quite a number had LEMBER NECK or PTOMANE. About August 1st, I began use of your DROPS, and I can say the results fully justified my statements. One case of Lember-Neck was too sick to take the medicine. I gave it some with a dropper, thinking then it a waste of time, but the next morning it was still around and finally got well. The rest of my flock straightened out and are doing well now.
Sincerely,

"The Monster," a Roland West production, based on Crane Wilbur's stage thriller, opens at the Metropolitan theater next Monday. Lon Chaney who played "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" and "He Gets Slapped," appears in the title role. "The Monster" is a surgeon whose twisted brain delights in performing strange operations on victims he lures to his sanitarium.

Johnny Arthur, who is featured with Chaney, is a stage comedian new to the screen. He plays an amateur detective who blunders upon the solution of the mystery of the horrors of the sanitarium.

Gertrude Olmsted, who sarterd her picture career by winning the Elks-Herald-Examiner Beauty Contest, is the leading woman. She plays a small town belle who gets into as many dangers as Pearl White did in "The Perils of Pauline."

Roland West, who adapted the stage play to the screen, directed "The Monster." His previous success with "The Unknown Purple," the mystery-melodrama, which he and Carlyle Moore wrote for the stage, and which he made for the screen is said to have surpassed in the new production. Mr. West also directed "De Luxe Annie" in which Norma Talmadge and Eugene O'Brien played the leading roles.

The story of "The Monster" begins with the strange disappearance of a wealthy citizen of a small town and the resulting excitement. Johnny Arthur, as the detective, decides to solve the mystery, and, while working on a clue, is shot down a chute into a strange house, where skeletons appear in closets, ghostly hands are extended wherever he turns and terrifying shadows fall on the walls. The girl and another suitor of hers also arrive in this sanitarium, where a series of harrowing experiences pursue them. The climax is surprising, and is disclosed only at the end of the picture when Johnny solves the mystery and wins the heroine.

"The Monster" was photographed by Hal Mohr, and the scenario written by Willard Mack and Albert G. G. Kenyon. C. Gardner Sullivan wrote the titles for this Roland West Production, which Metro-Goldwyn is distributing.

SOUND WAVES OF BRAIN

PICKED UP BY RADIO

Professor Says He Heard Signals
From Persons Shut Up in Insulated Cabinet.

Paris.—Sound waves from a human brain have been picked up by a radio receiver on a four to ten meter wave length. The experiment is described by Prof. Ferdinando Cazzamali, head of the department of neurology and psychiatry at the University of Milan, in an article prepared for the forthcoming issue of Revue de Metaphysique and reviewed by Le Matin.

As a result Professor Cazzamali foresees the transmission of sound waves from one brain to another.

He says he operated with highly excited persons or those suffering from nervous diseases as well as the noted Italian medium, Signore Maggi. The patient was shut up in a perfectly insulated cabinet. The sounds he heard through the receiver ranged from signals akin to ordinary wireless signals, to whistling to soft violin or cello notes.

Similar results were obtained, he declares, from persons under hypnosis. In every case, however, the emanations stopped where the subject resumed a normal and peaceful frame of mind.

Professor Cazzamali says he is led to believe that the waves sent out from the brain of one person under certain conditions might be picked up by the brain of another person, under similar nervous, mental or hypnotic stress.

My Favorite Stories

Enough for Wilkins
From the lowlands a special judge was sent up to the Kentucky mountains to try a lot of murder cases growing out of a desperate and bloody feud. He took with him as his official stenographer a young man from Louisville, who dressed smartly and, in strong contrast to the silent mountaineers, did quite a good deal of talking. For convenience let us call him Wilkins.

On his first Sunday morning in the mountain hamlet Wilkins felt the need of a shave. He had no razor and there was no regular barber in the town; but he learned from the hotelkeeper that there was an old cobbler living a few doors away who sometimes shaved transients.

Wilkins went to look for the cobbler. In a tiny shop he found an elderly native with straggly chin whiskers and a mild blue eye. The old chap got out an ancient razor from somewhere, stropped it deliberately and was ~~scrapping~~ scraping away on the patron's jaw. Wilkins felt the desire for a little conversation stealing over him.

"This is a mighty lawless country up here, ain't it?" he began in the way of opening up some conversation.

"I don't know," said the old chap, mildly. "Things is purty quiet jist at present."

He paused to put a keener edge on his blade, then went on.

"Well," said Wilkins, "you won't deny, I suppose, that you have a lot of murders in this town?"

"We don't gin'rally speak of 'em as murders," said the old man in a tone of gentle reproof. "Up here we jest calls 'em killin's."

"I'd call 'em murders, all right," said Wilkins briskly. "If shooting a man down in cold blood from ambush isn't murder, then I don't know a murder when I see one, that's all. When was the last man killed, as you call it, here in this town?"

"Why, last week," said the patriarch. "Whereabouts was he killed?" continued Wilkins.

"Right out yonder in the street in front of this here shop," stated the old man, with the air of one desiring to turn the conversation. "Razor hurt you much?"

"The razor's all right," said Wilkins snappily. "What I want to know are the facts about the killing of this last man. Who killed him?"

The cobbler let the edge of the razor linger right over the Adam's apple of the inquiring stranger for a fleeting moment.

"I done so," he said gently.

There was where the conversation seemed to begin to languish.

From the Chillicothe News-Advertiser we excerpt this notice about Miss Frances Boecher, of Hallsville, who is a niece of Mrs. Albert Crist and Mrs. Earl Kibler, of this city, and a graduate of Circleville High School. Miss Boecher was on the program at the Country Club on Thursday afternoon and evening when the committee entertained the members to a very delightful vaudeville program at the conclusion of the dinner.

Miss Frances Boecher who was selected from the Chautauqua Circuit, gave two groups of readings in costume. Miss Boecher has a most pleasing personality and admirable poise. Her readings showed a great amount of talent. The first group were Italian readings, "Mia Carlotta," "Between Two Lovers" and "Da Mexicano." The second group was selected.

A System of Farming That Brings Health and Prosperity

Every farm, regardless of the method of farming practiced or of the crops raised, should have at least a few good milch cows to provide

- (1) Enough milk, cream and butter for home use;
- (2) Enough skim-milk to raise some calves, pigs and chickens;
- (3) Enough cream or butter to sell to pay, in part or entirely, current living expenses.

This plan has been a "life-saver" for thousands of farmers, especially during the hard times of the past two years. It insures a living, at least, and often other income besides.

Such a plan pays best with a De Laval Cream Separator. It soon pays for itself—and skims cleaner, lasts longer and is easier to operate and clean than any other.

Good Stand of Red Clover Is Insured

Failures Uncommon Where Fertilizer Is Used.

Can a good stand of red clover be insured? "Yes," says a soils specialist who has charge of a number of experiment fields in a leading corn-belt state. "In the past five years we have never had a clover failure on our plots where fertilizer has been applied, but we often had failures on the unfertilized plots."

Clover failures are expensive, especially when red clover seed is as high as it is now. The mortality of clover seedlings is high—so high that many farmers have been discouraged in growing clover, although they know it ranks high as a soil improver.

Lime and phosphorus are generally the limiting factors that prevent successful clover growing. Acidity of the soil is becoming more and more common. Every year the equivalent of a quarter ton of limestone is lost from each acre in the drainage water. Continued removal of crops has greatly depleted the phosphorus content of many soils. Both lime and fertilizer are important, but liming is often over-emphasized under conditions where lack of available phosphorus is the limiting factor. Some soils, too, need potash in addition to phosphorus.

Fertilizer will insure the red clover investment. On the majority of soils fertilizer applied on the grain crop seeded to clover will pay for itself twice—once in the increased grain yield and again in the clover following

Some Great Advantages of Alsike Clover Crop

Nearly every farmer knows that alsike clover will grow in wet sour soils, but it is not generally known that on any land it will grow as many tons of hay to the acre and carry as much nitrogen in the roots as red clover; besides, that it costs less and takes half as much seed to an acre.

In a ten-year experiment at the Ohio experiment station alsike clover made 2.6 tons of hay to the acre, whereas at the first cutting red clover made two tons.

Most farmers prefer red clover where it can be grown because it stands higher, lodges less, and will grow a second cutting. Though alsike clover yields as well as red at the first cutting, it appears to yield less because it does not stand as high in the field, but when weighed out as hay alsike sometimes has the advantage. Alsike will lodge. Where it is grown as hay it usually should be sown with other clovers and timothy. This practice, of course, is common, but many farmers do not realize that alsike is the earliest maturing of any of our common clovers. It is ten days ahead of red clover, and if planted with timothy the crop should be harvested when the timothy is just coming into head. If the crop is harvested early, indications are that there will be a better chance for a second cutting.

Hog Wallow Rectangular in Shape Is Convenient

It is most convenient to make the hog wallow rectangular in shape with rounded corners and of a depth of not over 18 inches shallower at one end. A pool 15 to 20 feet long and 10 feet wide will be found amply large. The floor and side walls should be six inches thick, reinforced with wire mesh. A concrete floor four feet wide should be laid around the wallow to prevent the hogs from burrowing under or carrying in mud.

The wallow should be located near the water supply. If from a spring the water may flow through the pool continuously but if from a tank the wallow should be emptied and refilled at intervals. A good plan is to drain the outlet to the nearest line of tile.

FARM FACTS

The early seeders get the fly.

Read this until you understand it: No bull is better than a scrub bull.

Many farms could very profitably keep a few hives of bees. Sweet clover honey is the highest quality.

Bran, cottonseed meal, linseed oil meal are generally cheapest in late summer.

Wheat to be used for seedling should be treated with copper carbonate dust before planting.

Land suitable for the production of potatoes is suitable for the production of standard varieties of apples.

Plan to attend a culling school or secure the service of some one who has attended. The time is ideal for catching the slacker hen.

Sweet clover deserves a trial on any farm where the soil is sweet. It will help to decrease the pasture costs by producing more feed per acre.

If you would have something that will serve day and night all fall, winter, and early spring, striving to protect and make your lands richer, sow cover crops.

Vines of peas, beans and the like should be pulled up as soon as the bearing season is over. Spread out in the garden to dry and then burn.

MISCELLANEOUS
SHOWER FOR BRIDE-ELECT
Baskets of dahlias and fall flowers, which were used in profusion, were artistically arranged last evening at the Dodds home on West Wheeling street when Misses Margaret and Mary Dodds entertained with a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Ruth Thomas, bride-elect of Mr. John Dodds.
At an appropriate hour Miss Anna Mary Fox, niece of the hostesses, entered the room with a closed hamper and presented it to the honored guest who in her usual pleasing manner accepted the tokens of friendship from those present.
The color scheme of pink and white was effectively used in the dining room, and baskets of roses lent their enchantment, while a bride and groom on an altar made a most attractive centerpiece on the festal board.
A delicious two course luncheon was served.
The nuptial event will occur at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning, Oct. 27th, at St. Mary's church.

Miss Thomas is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thomas, 645 Laneuse street, Biloxi, Miss. She is one of the popular and efficient sales ladies in the ready-to-wear department of the Hickie Store and has made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Edgell for the past three years.
Mr. Dodds of the Kiener and Dodds Battery Station, this city, is the son of Mrs. James Dodds of West Wheeling street.—Lancaster Eagle.
The groom-to-be is a nephew of Mrs. J. F. English, of this city.

Heat with Distinction
At last it is proved that a home heater can be good looking—ornamental, if you will—as well as a practical heat-producing utility.
The Mueller Furnacette marks the greatest advance in home heating equipment since the invention of the heating stove. It is the joint creation of master furniture designers and skilled heating engineers. There is distinction in every line of its well-balanced, walnut-grained, vitreous enamel cabinet.
And as for heat—never was there an above-floor heater of any kind that could compare with the Furnacette in heating efficiency! It heats the whole house by continuously 're-circulating' warm, moist air thru all the rooms. It provides more comfortable, more uniform heat than two or three stoves combined, yet uses no more fuel than an ordinary heating stove.
Sold on convenient monthly payments.

THE ANNIVERSARY.

It was many and many a year ago,
In a kingdom by the sea;
(I am swiping the lines from Edgar
Poe,
But the rest of it's by me).
And the number of years, if you want
to know
Is four hundred and thirty-three.

Well, that many years ago today
Some islanders looked around
And they saw three ships come up
the bay
And heave their hooks aground.
And "Hoggawog-wolliga-swock!" said
they—
Which signifies, "we are found!"

"Hello!" cried Chris from the wab-
bling waves,
And the Injuns said, "come in!"
And he walked right in and treated
the braves
To a bottle of square-face gin—
Then they traded him gold and spice
and slaves
For some ornaments made of tin.

Then he sails back home as quick as he can,
And they said, "Have you been away?"
And he says, "I have been to China,
Japan, Borneo and Bombay!"
And because of the lies of that fanciful man
We are celebrating today.

MADE BILLIONS OF BILLS, BUT WORKS

Aged Man Printed Notes for U. S. for 65 Years.

Washington.—If Edward Meyers of this city had kept all the money he made during the 65 years of work since he was a boy of twelve he would be one of the richest men in the world today. Instead, at seventy-seven, gray-haired and bent, he is still forced to work for his living as a watchman in the Treasury building.

Yet Meyers figures that since he was twelve, when he started work as a messenger boy for the Western Bank Note company of Chicago, he has made more than $50,000,000,000. During one period of about six months a few years ago he made something over $1,000,000 every day. For, you see, Edward Meyers before they retired him from active duty in the bureau of engraving and printing three months ago, was a plate printer. The vast fortunes in money he made were not for him, but Uncle Sam, to put into circulation in the banks of the country.

When Meyers retired from the engraving bureau it was with a record
as one of the most expert plate printers in the history of the treasury.

Besides printing bills of every denomination since 1904, when he joined the bureau, Meyers has turned out Liberty bonds, certificates of indebtedness, savings certificates, war savings, revenue stamps and other government certificates.

Meyers represented the government
as demonstrator at exhibits of the engraving and printing bureau at five great exhibitions.

His last demonstrating service for the bureau was in October, 1924, when he demonstrated the plate printing art
at the annual Electrical Industrial exposition in New York, held under the auspices of Thomas A. Edison.

And now, at seventy-seven, they have retired him, and though he has made a matter of $50,000,000,000 during his lifetime, they have availed him naught,
and he is still a wage-earner.

BODY OF FLIER MISSING 11 DAYS FOUND

BY A FIFTEEN YEAR OLD BOY IN HILLS OF PENNSYLVANIA

Airoplanist Lost His Life

When His Plane Crushed Into a Mountain In a Fog On the Night of October 1st Near Bellefonte, Pa.—Second Government Aviator To Lose His Life in the Same Locality—The Finder of the Body Will Receive a Reward of $1,000.

Crushed amid the giant trees on the side of Nittany Mountain, the wreckage of a government mail plane Sunday disclosed the body of Charles H. Ames, the pilot, for whom thousands have been searching nine days.

It was evident that Ames, for six years a pilot, was flying low on the night of October 1, while enroute from New York to the west with a cargo of mail. Air mail officials expressed the belief that the birdman, confused by a dense fog, had piloted his ship into the mountainside, meeting instant death when the plane crashed into the forest.

Death Instantaneous.

When found the death pilot was seated in the cockpit, his right arm raised to his face as if to ward off a blow. His legs were entwined about the control stick and his parachute was strapped to his back, with two flares, the aviator's signal of distress, lying by his side. The gas tank contained sufficient fuel to carry him some distance and all switches of the motor were on. This led the mail officials to believe that death was instantaneous.

Dr. W. A. Heaton of Phillipsburg, the coroner of Center county, after examining the body at an undertaking establishment at Bellefonte, Pennsylvania Sunday night, said that Ames' death was "due to a fracture of the frontal bone." There was a bad cut on the airman's forehead and bruises on his face. Other parts of the body were unmarked.

Intact in the rear section of the ship were the 13 pouches of mail with which Ames started on the fatal trip.

Superintendent Carl F. Egge of the air mail service, who directed the widespread search for Ames, reached the spot where the birdman met death shortly after the plane was found. He reported that the plane was a total wreck, both wings being destroyed when they crashed into the big trees. These trees, he said, closed in on the ship, covering it completely and making it impossible for searching airmen to locate the wreckage.

Paul Ames, Washington, brother of the dead pilot, reached Bellefonte Sunday night from Clarion, where he had participated in the search. He said no funeral arrangements would be made until he heard from his parents Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Ames, Hollywood, California.

In addition to his parents and the brother, Ames is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Carroll E. Blakemore, Corvallis, Oregon, and Mrs. Frank J. Taylors, Saratoga, California. The brother said that he believed the remains of the pilot would be taken to Jackson, Michigan, former home of the Ames' for burial.

Superintendent Egge announced that H. B. Shaver, eastern division air mail; Superintendent F. J. Celhaus, manager of the Bellefonte flying field, and J. D. Hiel, veteran mail pilot, named to investigate the crash, convened at Bellefonte Monday and later visited the scene of the accident to view the tangled remains of the ship.

Ames was on his course and was near the Heckla light, beacon for airmen, when he met his fate. Over the point, where his body rested in the debris, other airmen had passed each day flying east and west with their cargoes of mail for New York and Chicago.

For several days the search for Ames had centered on the Clarion region, west of Bellefonte, where thousands of volunteers, Pennsylvania national guardsmen and aviators combed a wide area in the belief that the pilot had fallen in the district. Little hope was held that he would be found east of Bellefonte. But there were those who believed that in the mountains around Nittany would be found the plane with its pilot dead.

The plane was found by John D. Earmitt, the 15 year old son of E. A. Earmitt, a farmer of Heckla, nearby. The lad was one of a party organized Sunday morning to search the mountain side.

The place where the body was found was on the true course to the Bellefonte field. The machine was lying head down the mountainside, and slightly tilted to the right. Ames' body was strapped in the seat leaning over the right side of the plane with the head resting on the right arm. The face was partly mashed and there was a deep wound in the head.

The tops of several nearby trees had been cut off and two other trees were snapped off near the bottom where the plane finally landed. The wings were torn off and the motor was split in two lengthwise. There was no evidence of fire.

It was the theory of those familiar with the air mail course in that territory that Ames probably mistook the Keckle gap light ahead of him as the Bellefonte field and started to descend to make his landing. As the weather was foggy the night he disappeared he evidently was flying low so as not to miss the field. In doing so, it is believed, he struck the tops of the trees and then fell.

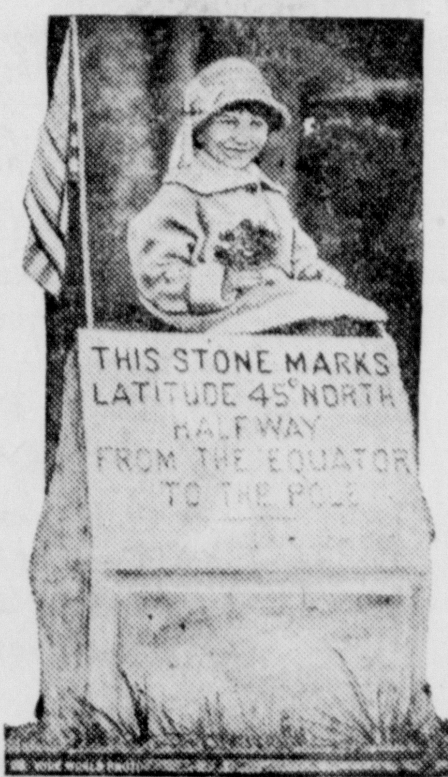

The fact that his motor was split in two and the thick trees were cut off near the bottom indicated that he struck the ground with terrific force.

Ames was 32 years old. He was a World war veteran and had been in the air mail service for several years. He was regarded as one of the most experienced pilots in the service.

A reward of $1000 had been offered for the find of Ames, alive or dead. Of this sum, $500 was offered by the Pilots' Association of America, $250 by the air mail pilots and $250 by Harry Humphries of Cleveland, a personal friend.

Ames' death is the second that has occurred among the air mail pilots in the mountain ranges of Pennsylvania. In March, 1924, Brooks Hyde Pearson was caught in a snowstorm near Curwensville, west of Bellefonte, and is believed to have dashed into a mountainside. He was found after several hours' search in his partly burned plane by a farmer in a ravine in the wooded part of his farm.

WASHINGTON IS CINCHING CHAMPIONSHIP

Walter Johnson Whitewashed the "Smoky City" Pirates—Score 4 to 0.

Walter Johnson's second world series ambition was realized Sunday when the speed king pitched Washington to a 4 to 0 whitewash of the Pittsburgh National league champions thus placing the American leaguers in the lead, three games to one.

Never before did a world series pitcher succeed in blanking the Pirates. The old king of modern mounds men that ever swept a baseball across the pitching distances, stood, and in his majestic presence the sluggers of the Pittsburgh Pirates were again strangely dwarfed.

They were but tiny little men, running her and there, vainly, futilely, in the shadow of the giant, like the Lilliputians in Gulliver's Travels.

This series seems to be about over. The Washington club, of the American League, now has a lead of three games to one over the champions of the National league, and if the Senators win again Monday, the annual baseball struggle comes to a close. While Johnson was holding the Pirates in the hollow of his oily old glove Sunday afternoon "Goose" Goslin hit a home run into the leftfield bleachers with two runners on the bases.

"Moon-face" Joe Harrie, the heaviest hitter of the series so far, immediately followed him with another homer, which was interesting but not important as far the result was concerned.

ADELPHI FAIR ATTRACTED A LARGE CROWD

George Siberell, Most Perfect Baby and Parker Goldrick, Typical Boy.

Fifteen hundred persons turned out Saturday afternoon at Adelphi for the events of the third and last day of the annual Knights of Pythias community fair.

Four events sponsored by the Columbus Dispatch attracted the attention of fair patrons Saturday and were enthusiastically watched despite the chilly weather. A fancy work contest for women brought out more than a dozen entries, each of whom displayed her best materials in the needlework arts. The winner, Miss Elsie Redfern, of Adelphi, was rewarded with an imported Italian linen table set. Elsie Armstrong and Kathlyen Armstrong were second and third in the honors, respectively.

Parker Goldrick, accompanied by his canine friend, called by the name of "Mutt," carried off first honors in the contest to select the most typical boy and his dog. Parker carried home a football and a new dog collar as his trophies. Paul Miller and his dog, "Bob," were second.

George Edwin Siberell, aged six months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reese Siberell, of Kingston, was adjudged the most perfect in the baby contest, which was supervised by physicians of the Ross county board of health. The boy had a score of 90 per cent. An engraved sterling silver mug is his reward.

Two knives, given for first and second places in the men's whittling contest, were carried home, respectively by R. M. Cryder of Adelphi and R. E. Rossiter, of Kingston.

DEMAND FREE RADIO RIGHTS OF COMPOSERS

Youngstown, O. Oct. 12, (UP). — The fight from now on will be between the radio listener and the composers' society instead of between the broadcasting stations and the society of Authors and Composers.

Announcement by radio station TAM, Cleveland, that it would close five studios because of demands of music publishers for high license fees has stirred the fans here to drastic action.

An early meeting of broadcast listeners is contemplated at which the fans will probably sign a pledge to boycott any composer or publisher who does not give free radio rights to his work.

DOWN IN ALABAMA.

Eli Haag, who falsely registered at the New American hotel, had a hearing before Mayor Fitzpatrick Saturday afternoon and was found guilty. He was handed a fine of $150 and costs, which he paid and departed for a warmer clime, Alabama.

Haag was accompanied here a girl thirteen years of age. He was to be followed by the girl's mother, Mrs. Merle Douglas, of Columbus, and the trio was going south. After the trouble he left this city alone. The woman called the police department Sunday for her "sweetie," but he had flown.

GRAND JURY.

The grand jury which recessed last week, convened this morning and took up their duties. Mrs. Jennie Groce was excused owing to illness and Charles H. Niles was called in her place.

NO INTERFERENCE

From Federal Court in Indian Tribal Customs.

Santa Fe, Oct. 9.—The Pueblo Indians have a right to regulate the costumes worn in their dances and matters of discipline within their pueblos, according to a decision handed down here by Federal Judge Colin Neblett. This is an important decision since it defines the authority of government agents as well as other persons in interfering with the self-government of the Indians within their own pueblos.

The case that called forth this decision was that of two young Indians who had been away at a government school and refused to change their American clothes when taking part in one of the tribal ceremonies. The Indian Council reprimanded them for this and fined them $1 each. For the second offense they were fined $2 each, and chose to take the "ceremonial slap" instead. One of the boys, Joe Sandoval, was beaten upon his blanketed back in the presence of the council, while the other boy, Tony Mirabal, was given one stroke with a bridle.

According to the argument in the case this was never a brutal or violent punishment, but a tradition, a symbol of respect to tribal customs. Even old men received it if the Council of the Elders deemed they merited it. Also the boys were given the choice of not appearing in the ceremony, or of complying with its requirements if they wished to dance.

Following a complaint from the boys when this happened last spring, C. J. Crandall, Superintendent, took up the matter with the Indian Bureau and was instructed to turn the case over to the United States Attorney. The Governor of Taos, Guadalupe Lucero, and his nine councilmen were arrested and brought to Santa Fe to answer charges of assault and battery. The court held, however, that this did not come within one of the nine crimes specified by the United States code as those for which Indians are to be judged by American laws.

The question of ceremonial dress among the Indians is one which has great significance in the survival of pure Indian ceremonies and art. During the recent Santa Fe fiesta, the Indian dances were given 50 points in the prize contest between all the Pueblo for purity of original Indian costumes and were penalized for "store clothes." The old men of the Pueblos, many of whom are members of the councils, declare that it is only by adhering strictly to their old traditions that the deep religious and cultural life of the Indians can survive the American influence.

One of the interesting details of this trial was the memorandum sent by the Taos Council to Washington as to how the returned Indian students should alter their modern clothes in order to meet the Indian requirements.

If you borrow a dish-pan from your neighbor, and have to pay it back by loaning him your car the price comes high. Yet some people expect the redemption of a favor in just about that proportion. An accommodation loan from a friend or relative usually costs plenty in one form or another and in addition to the cost, if the incident should become the subject of family or neighborhood discussion, it is embarrassing, to say the least. An element of personal accommodation enters into every City Loan transaction, but fundamentally it is a business proposition. The borrower knows the full cost before he starts, also that a credit once established can be used time and again as desired.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

Teacher Says Oil, Prayers and Books Brought Wealth

Chicago.—A romance of the triple tincture of oil, education and religion was disclosed at the University of Chicago. A. G. Koenig, once a poor teacher, who struck oil in Texas, has resumed his study of chemistry at the University of Chicago.

He started his course in 1917, but lack of funds caused him to abandon it. In 1921, when he had saved enough to produce a small income, he made two pledges.

One, that he would give one-fifth of his earnings to the churches and humanity, and the other that he would continue in the teaching profession as the best field of human service.

He began teaching at Mexico, where he made an investment in land that has a gas well which under his analysis showed a gasoline content. A well was sunk, oil was found, and his yearly income increased in six months to $100,000. The same year he gave $20,000 to education and charity.

COMMANDER McIVER IS STRONG LEADER

Independence Day was not the only thing American Legionnaires of South Carolina celebrated on the Fourth of July, 1924; the second cause of jubilee was the election on that date of E. Rick McIver, of Florence, as 1925 commander of the South Carolina department of the Legion.

"There's nothing spectacular or theatrical about Rick McIver," declared a rural friend, "but his a mighty comfortable feeling to have him at the head of affairs; you can always bank on the cart getting there that Rick McIver is pulling, because he never rears nor kicks over the traces."

That astute observance of Commander McIver is about as true as anything can be. He is a man who has gone quietly and calmly about his duties, leaving bombast and blarney while he worked. Which doesn't imply that he has led a cloistered and protected life by any means. He's a fighter and a virile, two-fisted leader of men, at present engaged in the business of maintaining law and order as the chief of police of Florence, which office he has held since 1921.

Something of the energy of Rick McIver is revealed by the record of Clemson agricultural and mechanical college from which institution he graduated in 1915. In addition to scholastic honors, the athletic records show that as captain of the track team, he won in one meet the high jump, broad jump, 100-yard dash, the 140 and 220-yard hurdles. This is mentioned as an indication of what might be expected of such a man in the big track meet of 1917-1918 as a member of the A. F. team.

At the beginning of the Mexican border firework "Rick" went to the border as first sergeant of company E, Second South Carolina infantry. On November 20, 1916, he was commissioned a first lieutenant and assigned to the same unit. When called to the service in the World war he was made a captain. Captain McIver sailed for France in May, 1918, and served with the One Hundred and Fifth ammunition train until his discharge in 1919. Aside from soldiering and policing, Commander McIver is a farmer.

Education Week Is Set for November 16 to 22

"American Education Week" will be observed throughout the nation the week of November 16 to 22, 1925. It has been announced at national headquarters of the American Legion at Indianapolis.

The National Education association and the United States bureau of education co-operate with the Legion in the perpetuation of Education week, which was first suggested by the Legion at the annual meeting of the National Education association in 1921. The week has since been observed annually by presidential proclamation.

The program for the week embraces Constitution day, Patriotism day, School and Teacher day, Conservation and Thrift day, Know Your School day, Community and Health day, and For God and Country day.

Requests Purchase of Historic Billop House

A proposal that the city of New York purchase historic "Old Billop House," at Tottenville, N. Y., which housed the first peace conference after the War of the Revolution, was included in a petition sent to Mayor Hylan recently by the American Legion post of Staten Island. The house was erected in 1668. Benjamin Franklin and John Adams met Lord Howe, representing the British, there to decide peace terms. The Legion would convert the ten acres surrounding Billop house into a public park.

Interesting opposition to the acquisition of the property has been raised on the grounds that Christopher Billop, original owner, was a Tory actively and brutally engaged in the War of the Revolution.

DEATH'S TOLL IN THE STATE LAST SUNDAY

Disasters Due to Grade Crossings and Collisions of Automobiles.

At least four persons were killed and more than two score injured in traffic accidents throught the state Sunday.

Two were killed at Canton, one at Toledo, one at Cincinnati, and accidents at Bellaire and other cities added to the rapidly mounting list of injured.

In nearly every instance the disasters were due to grade crossing crashes or collisions between machines.

Canton, O., — Carl Hall, 35 and Gene Snyder 36, were killed Sunday when a Pennsylvania train demolished their car at a grade crossing near here.

Toledo, — Mrs. Amelia Kuttner, 56, was killed Sunday when the machine she was riding in collided with one driven by Edwin Holley, 20.

Cincinnati, — Hamilton county's traffic accident toll mounted to 100 Sunday when Samuel Deck, 42, was killed when his automobile and another machine collided.

Shelby, — W. E. Myers, 40, and his 5 year old daughter were killed here Sunday when a train wrecked the Myers automobile at a grade crossing.

SOCIAL AFFAIRS

A profusion of beautiful dahlias were used to decorate the home of Mrs. Orion King last evening when she and Miss Helen Wittich entertained to a six o'clock dinner-bridge. The dahlias, which were grown by Mrs. King and Mrs. James Moffitt, were placed about the home in a very artistic manner and were the only decorations used. Sixty-four ladies found their places around 16 tables placed in the large living rooms where a delicious dinner was served. After the dinner several games of bridge were played which resulted in Mrs. N. T. Weldon receiving first and Miss Nell Weldon the second prize.

Mrs. Thomas Cooper, of Los Angeles, California; Mrs. Paul Cromley, Mrs. Anna Ball and Mrs. George Gardner, of Ashville, were the guests from out of town.

FIND RICH GOLD DEPOSIT IN IDAHO

Juncture of Three Rivers Yields Great Wealth.

Pocatello, Idaho.—At a desolate point at the juncture of Clark, Butte and Jefferson counties in northeastern Idaho, where three rivers sink into the sands of the Snake river basin, a gold placer which is expected to be as rich as that of the Boise basin of early days has been discovered.

Announcement from Dubois confirmed the discovery, and with the movement just started claims are being rapidly staked out.

The three streams—Big Lost river, Little Lost river and Birch creek—have in ancient times and up until the advent of irrigation in the early eighties, virtually merged their waters and disappeared in the sands on the same square mile of desert.

For nearly fifty years these mysterious rivers have been the despair of geologists, engineers and gold seekers because they gave but niggardly indication of the gold values that geologists insisted must be present.

D. T. Murphy, a Dubois civil engineer, some time ago set out to locate the deposit. Concluding that the three torrential streams carried values, but moved too fast to deposit them, the search rapidly led to the sinks, where the theory was verified.

Besides gold and indications of platinum, gems of the corundum family of which emeralds and rubies are typical, have been found.

Volcanic Island

On the island of Java there are 117 volcanic mountains, of which 90 are active; the Hawaiian Islands, where the greatest volcanoes rise, have relatively few; only four active and one extinct cone.—Science Service.

A VOCATIONAL BACK

A certain professor, who is a remarkably well-built man, was staying at a village not long ago. One day he happened to pass two men carting flour.

"Say, Bill, who's that?" he overheard one asking the other.

"That's the professor what's staying here," was Bill's reply. "They say as how he's very learned."

"What a spollt man," rejoined the other. "I never in my life see'd such a back for a sack of flour."

Convinced

"Are you getting anything out of that course in salesmanship?"

"Not much. I'm afraid I'll never be one-tenth as good a salesman as the man who sold me the course."—American Legion Weekly.

A Daring Departure in 1921

..today, the nation's standard for small home heating

"BEAUTIFUL, yes, but will it work?" Many questions, like this one, greeted the Heatrola in 1921. It was so different in appearance and operation from anything known before.

But Heatrola "worked!" From the day of the first installation, its success was assured. For Heatrola, handsome as a fine mahogany cabinet, and as easy to keep clean, does the work of a basement furnace! It keeps every room in the house, upstairs and down, cozy and snug in coldest weather. And requires no more fuel than any stove requires.

Tens of thousands of homes enjoyed Heatrola's furnace comfort last Winter—many thousands more will own Heatrolas before snow flies. Right here in this community, the homes of many of your neighbors are kept warm by this modern heating method. Let us show you these Heatrolas, and tell you how easily you can own one, too. MR. F. L. FICKARDT:
All spring I have been having trouble with my flock, both young and old. During July I lost about 100. Quite a number had LIMBER NECK or PTOMAIN. About August 1st, I began use of your DROPS, and I can say the results fully justified your statements. One case of Limber-Neck was too sick to take the medicine. I gave it some with a dropper, thinking then it a waste of time, but the next morning it was still around and finally got well. The rest of my flock straightened out and are doing well now.

SOUND WAVES OF BRAIN
PICKED UP BY RADIO

Professor Says He Heard Signals
From Persons Shut Up in Insulated Cabinet.

Paris.—Sound waves from a human brain have been picked up by a radio receiver on a four to ten meter wave length.

The experiment is described by Prof.
Ferdinando Cazzamali, head of the department of neurology and psychiatry at the University of Milan, in an article prepared for the forthcoming issue of Revue de Metaphysique and reviewed by Le Matin.

As a result Professor Cazzamali foresees the transmission of sound waves from one brain to another.

He says he operated with highly excited persons or those suffering from nervous diseases as well as the noted Italian medium, Signore Maggi. The patient was shut up in a perfectly insulated cabinet. The sounds he heard through the receiver ranged from signals akin to ordinary wireless signals, to whistling to soft violin or cello notes.

Similar results were obtained, he declares, from persons under hypnosis.
In every case, however, the emanations stopped where the subject resumed a normal and peaceful frame of mind.

Professor Cazzamali says he is led to believe that the waves sent out from the brain of one person under certain conditions might be picked up by the brain of another person, under similar nervous, mental or hypnotic stress.

Enough for Wilkins

From the lowlands a special judge was sent up to the Kentucky mountains to try a lot of murder cases growing out of a desperate and bloody feud. He took with him as his official stenographer a young man from Louisville, who dressed smartly and, in strong contrast to the silent mountaineers, did quite a good deal of talking.
For convenience let us call him Wilkins.

On his first Sunday morning in the mountain hamlet Wilkins felt the need of a shave. He had no razor and there was no regular barber in the town;
but he learned from the hotelkeeper that there was an old cobbler living a few doors away who sometimes shaved transients.

Wilkins went to look for the cobbler.
In a tiny shop he found an elderly native with straggly chin whiskers and a mild blue eye. The old chap got out an ancient razor from somewhere, stropped it deliberately and was scrapping away on the patron's jaw.
Wilkins felt the desire for a little conversation stealing over him.

"This is a mighty lawless country up here, ain't it?" he began in the way of opening up some conversation.

"I don't know," said the old chap, mildly. "Things is purty quiet jist at present."

He paused to put a keener edge on his blade, then went on.

"Well," said Wilkins, "you won't deny, I suppose, that you have a lot of murders in this town?"

"We don't gin'rally speak of 'em as murders," said the old man in a tone of gentle reproof. "Up here we jist calls 'em killin's."

"I'd call 'em murders, all right," said Wilkins briskly. "If shooting a man down in cold blood from ambush isn't murder, then I don't know a murder when I see one, that's all. When was the last man killed, as you call it, here in this town?"

"Why, last week," said the patriarch.

"Whereabouts was he killed?" continued Wilkins.

"Right out yonder in the street in front of this here shop," stated the old man, with the air of one desiring to turn the conversation. "Razor hurt you much?"

"The razor's all right," said Wilkins snappily. "What I want to know are the facts about the killing of this last man. Who killed him?"

The cobbler let the edge of the razor linger right over the Adam's apple of the inquiring stranger for a fleeting moment.

"I done so," he said gently.

There was where the conversation seemed to begin to languish.

SOCIAL ENTER-TAINMENT

From the Chillicothe News-Advertiser we excerpt this notice about Miss Frances Boecher, of Hallsville, who is a niece of Mrs.
Albert Crist and Mrs. Earl Kibler, of this city, and a graduate of Circleville High School. Miss Boecher was on the program at the Country Club on Thursday afternoon and evening when the committee entertained the members to a very delightful vaudeville program at the conclusion of the dinner:

Miss Frances Boecher who was selected from the Chautauqua Circuit, gave two groups of readings in costume. Miss Boecher has a most pleasing personality and admirable poise. Her readings showed a great amount of talent. The first group were Italian readings, "Mia Carlotta,"
"Between Two Lovers" and "Da Mericano." The second group was selected.

The One Fault

"There is only one thing I cannot tolerate in my husband!"
"What is that?"
"That he is my husband."

UNCERTAIN

"Mother, George paints a wonderful future for us."
"Yes, but somehow I can't understand those futuristic paintings."

Perhaps the thing that made the old-fashioned dances respectable was the frame of mind.

A System of Farming That Brings Health and Prosperity

Every farm, regardless of the method of farming practiced or of the crops raised, should have at least a few good milch cows to provide

- (1) Enough milk, cream and butter for home use;
- (2) Enough skim-milk to raise some calves, pigs and chickens;
- (3) Enough cream or butter to sell to pay, in part or entirely, current living expenses.

This plan has been a "life-saver" for thousands of farmers, especially during the hard times of the past two years. It insures a living, at least, and often other income besides.

Such a plan pays best with a De Laval Cream Separator. It soon pays for itself—and skims cleaner, lasts longer and is easier to operate and clean than any other.

Good Stand of Red Clover Is Insured

Failures Uncommon Where Fertilizer Is Used.

Can a good stand of red clover be insured? "Yes," says a soils specialist who has charge of a number of experiment fields in a leading corn-belt state. "In the past five years we have never had a clover failure on our plots where fertilizer has been applied, but we often had failures on the unfertilized plots."

Clover failures are expensive, especially when red clover seed is as high as it is now. The mortality of clover seedlings is high—so high that many farmers have been discouraged in growing clover, although they know it ranks high as a soil improver.

Lime and phosphorus are generally the limiting factors that prevent successful clover growing. Acidity of the soil is becoming more and more common. Every year the equivalent of a quarter ton of limestone is lost from each acre in the drainage water. Continued removal of crops has greatly depleted the phosphorus content of many soils. Both lime and fertilizer are important, but liming is often over-emphasized under conditions where lack of available phosphorus is the limiting factor. Some soils, too, need potash in addition to phosphorus.

Fertilizer will insure the red clover investment. On the majority of soils fertilizer applied on the grain crop seeded to clover will pay for itself twice—once in the increased grain yield and again in the clover following.

Some Great Advantages of Alsike Clover Crop

Nearly every farmer knows that alsike clover will grow in wet sour soils, but it is not generally known that on any land it will grow as many tons of hay to the acre and carry as much nitrogen in the roots as red clover; besides, that it costs less and takes half as much seed to an acre.

In a ten-year experiment at the Ohio experiment station alsike clover made 2.6 tons of hay to the acre, whereas at the first cutting red clover made two tons.

Most farmers prefer red clover where it can be grown because it stands higher, lodges less, and will grow a second cutting. Though alsike clover yields as well as red at the first cutting, it appears to yield less because it does not stand as high in the field, but when weighed out as hay alsike sometimes has the advantage. Alsike will lodge. Where it is grown as hay it usually should be sown with other clovers and timothy. This practice, of course, is common, but many farmers do not realize that alsike is the earliest maturing of any of our common clovers. It is ten days ahead of red clover, and if planted with timothy the crop should be harvested when the timothy is just coming into head. If the crop is harvested early, indications are that there will be a better chance for a second cutting.

It is most convenient to make the hog wallow rectangular in shape with rounded corners and of a depth of not over 18 inches shallower at one end. A pool 15 to 20 feet long and 10 feet wide will be found amply large. The floor and side walls should be six inches thick, reinforced with wire mesh. A concrete floor four feet wide should be laid around the wallow to prevent the hogs from burrowing under or carrying in mud.

The wallow should be located near the water supply. If from a spring the water may flow through the pool continuously but if from a tank the wallow should be emptied and refilled at intervals. A good plan is to drain the outlet to the nearest line of tile.

FARM FACTS

The early seeders get the fly.

Read this until you understand it: No bull is better than a scrub bull.

Many farms could very profitably keep a few hives of bees. Sweet clover honey is the highest quality.

Bran, cottonseed meal, linseed oil meal are generally cheapest in late summer.

Wheat to be used for seeding should be treated with copper carbonate dust before planting.

Land suitable for the production of potatoes is suitable for the production of standard varieties of apples.

Plan to attend a culling school or secure the service of some one who has attended. The time is ideal for catching the slacker hen.

Sweet clover deserves a trial on any farm where the soil is sweet. It will help to decrease the pasture costs by producing more feed per acre.

If you would have something that will serve day and night all fall, winter, and early spring, striving to protect and make your lands richer, sow cover crops.

Vines of peas, beans and the like should be pulled up as soon as the bearing season is over. Spread out in the garden to dry and then burn.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER FOR BRIDE-ELECT

Baskets of dahlias and fall flowers, which were used in profusion, were artistically arranged last evening at the Dodds home on West Wheeling street when Misses Margaret and Mary Dodds entertained with a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Ruth Thomas, bride-elect of Mr. John Dodds.

At an appropriate hour Miss Anna Mary Fox, niece of the hostesses, entered the room with a closed hamper and presented it to the honored guest who in her usual pleasing manner accepted the tokens of friendship from those present.

The color scheme of pink and white was effectively used in the dining room, and baskets of roses lent their enchantment, while a bride and groom on an altar made a most attractive centerpiece on the festal board.

A delicious two course luncheon was served.

The nuptial event will occur at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning, Oct. 27th, at St. Mary's church.

Miss Thomas is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thomas, 645 Laneuse street, Biloxi, Miss. She is one of the popular and efficient sales ladies in the ready-to-wear department of the Hickie Store and has made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Edgell for the past three years.

Mr. Dodds of the Kiener and Dodds Battery Station, this city, is the son of Mrs. James Dodds of West Wheeling street.—Lancaster Eagle.

The groom-to-be is a nephew of Mrs. J. F. English, of this city.

Heat with Distinction

At last it is proved that a home heater can be good looking—ornamental, if you will—as well as a practical heat-producing utility.

The Mueller Furnacette marks the greatest advance in home heating equipment since the invention of the heating stove. It is the joint creation of master furniture designers and skilled heating engineers. There is distinction in every line of its well-balanced, walnut-grained, vitreous enamel cabinet.

And as for heat—never was there an above-floor heater of any kind that could compare with the Furnacette in heating efficiency! It heats the whole house by continuously 're-circulating' warm, moist air thru all the rooms. It provides more comfortable, more uniform heat than two or three stoves combined, yet uses no more fuel than an ordinary heating stove.

Sold on convenient monthly payments.

THE ANNIVERSARY.

It was many and many a year ago,
In a kingdom by the sea;
(I am swiping the lines from Edgar
Poe,
But the rest of it's by me).
And the number of years, if you want
to know
Is four hundred and thirty-three.

Well, that many years ago today
Some islanders looked around
And they saw three ships come up
the bay
And heave their hooks aground.
And "Hoggawog-wolliga-swock!" said
they—
Which signifies, "we are found!"

"Hello!" cried Chris from the wab-
bling waves,
And the Injuns said, "come in!"
And he walked right in and treated
the braves
To a bottle of square-face gin—
Then they traded him gold and spice
and slaves
For some ornaments made of tin.

Then he sails back home as quick as
he can,
And they said, "Have you been
away?"
And he says, "I have been to China,
Japan, Borneo and Bombay!"
And because of the lies of that fanci-
ful man
We are celebrating today.

MADE BILLIONS OF BILLS, BUT WORKS

Aged Man Printed Notes for U. S. for 65 Years.

Washington.—If Edward Meyers of this city had kept all the money he made during the 65 years of work since he was a boy of twelve he would be one of the richest men in the world
today. Instead, at seventy-seven, gray-haired and bent, he is still forced to work for his living as a watchman in
the Treasury building.

Yet Meyers figures that since he was twelve, when he started work as a messenger boy for the Western Bank
Note company of Chicago, he has made more than $50,000,000,000. During one period of about six months a few years ago he made something over $1,000,000 every day. For, you see, Edward Meyers before they retired him from active duty in the bureau of engraving and printing three months ago, was a plate printer. The vast fortunes in money he made were not for him, but Uncle Sam, to put into circulation in the banks of the country.

When Meyers retired from the engraving bureau it was with a record
as one of the most expert plate printers in the history of the treasury.

Besides printing bills of every denomination since 1904, when he joined the bureau, Meyers has turned out
Liberty bonds, certificates of indebtedness, savings certificates, war savings, revenue stamps and other government certificates.

Meyers represented the government
as demonstrator at exhibits of the engraving and printing bureau at five
great exhibitions.

His last demonstrating service for the bureau was in October, 1924, when
he demonstrated the plate printing art
at the annual Electrical Industrial exposition in New York, held under the auspices of Thomas A. Edison.

And now, at seventy-seven, they have retired him, and though he has made a matter of $50,000,000,000 during his lifetime, they have availed him naught,
and he is still a wage-earner.

"The Store That Treats You Right."

The Extravagance of Cheapness!

If one has money to waste on clothing, it may be all right to buy some of the so called "cheap" goods that are so freely advertised.

But comparatively few people can afford this form of extravagance. The man who is careful of his expenditures is not wasting money on poorly made ill-fitting clothes whose only attraction is a low first cost.

However, the shrewd and discerning buyers have contributed to our steady growth. The season's Values. Quality and dependability.
